PIZZA DI NAPOLI

Flour

For the preparation of the dough we take Italian flour from soft wheat varieties, which are made from wheat kernels, high in protein and starch (grinding "00"). This type of flour is most suitable for long "ripening" dough, and makes it very easy and useful.

Just like at pizza homeland, in Naples, we use only flour, water, salt and yeast to prepare the dough and do not use sugar, fat, eggs and various impurities.

Dough

The temperature and humidity of the air greatly influence the quality of the pizza. Every morning our chef pizzayollo, when kneading the dough, takes these parameters into account and changes the amount of flour and yeast in the recipe, so cooking dough is always a creative process

Before using the dough, we keep it for at least 24 hours. During this time, complex chemical processes occur: proteins and starch are broken down with enzymes, carbon dioxide is released, and the dough loosens. This makes the pizza easier, less caloric and better absorbed by the body.

Forming the basis for a future pizza, pizzayollo manually provides her form. It is necessary not to break the structure of the dough but to shift carbon dioxide from the center of the pizza to the edge so that the sides comes out airy and soft.. This is a very complex and exciting process

For making pizza we use the best products: flour, that is approved Pizza Napoletana, natural mozzarella and Pelati tomatoes without preservatives and bars.
