

The work is a description of nature

The nature of Ukraine is rich and diverse. Thanks to the geographical location and climatic conditions, we have spacious steppes and dense forests, gentle seas and majestic mountains, raging rivers and calm lakes, thousands of plant species grow in the vastness of the country and a huge number of animals live. Seasons change - and each of them gives us its own special beauty.

Ukraine is always associated with endless golden fields under a clear blue sky. A fully ripened ear of wheat symbolizes wealth and fertility, it is heavy and bows down to the earth itself, as if giving thanks for the power with which it has filled it. Birds easily circle above the meadows, and their singing is carried far and wide.

In the mountains of Crimea, it is very beautiful at the end of spring. The slopes are covered with fresh green grass and flowers, and the Black Sea splashes below - not black at all, but blue-turquoise in color. Silhouettes of distant mountains seem to float in the sea, as if painted in watercolor. Somewhere among the ridges there are rapid waterfalls, but they are small and almost completely dry up in the summer. There is always fresh and cool air near them, and the water is so clear that you can see every small stone on the bottom.

The nature of Ukraine pleases the eye. However, its real beauty lies in the fact that it provides us with everything necessary for life - air and water, minerals, food, raw materials for building, sewing clothes, printing books, etc. So that the beauty of Ukrainian nature does not become impoverished, its wonderful landscapes do not disappear, rivers do not dry up, animals do not die out, we must take care of it - build ecological industries, use clean energy and simply do not litter the streets. It is not difficult at all, and can bring good results if we all do it.